

At Liberty Advisors, unique insights from both sides of the criminal justice system inform our prison consulting services. Our lead consultant Tara Lenich combines her prosecutorial experience with first-hand knowledge of the defense. This provides her with an unmatched perspective to guide clients through each step of the criminal process in lockstep with their defense teams.

Tara is a non-legal member of the National Defender and Legal Aid Association and the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers. She is also a certified mitigation specialist through the National Alliance of Sentencing Advocates & Mitigation Specialists. As our lead consultant, she extends tailored assistance in federal criminal cases via three distinct services:

- Prison Consulting: Liberty Advisors addresses non-legal queries and provides both practical and emotional support to our clients and their families.
- Sentencing Advocacy: Our team helps gather background information in order to support the preparation, analysis of and response to the Pre-Sentencing Report (PSR).
- Mitigation Specialist: We collect essential information in order to ensure that the client's story is told in a way that could influence more favorable outcomes.

Comprehensive Support for Clients and Attorneys

Liberty Advisors manages the non-legal aspects of criminal cases, ensuring attorneys can focus on vital legal issues. Our role extends to managing client and family expectations, facilitating courtroom comfort, addressing non-legal queries, creating narratives, coordinating character reference letters, and overall client preparation.

A vital aspect of our service involves answering non-legal questions based on firsthand knowledge of the system, thus alleviating clients' anxiety. Guidance is offered on procedures for arrest, expectations for sentencing day, preparations for prison, and an in-depth understanding of daily life in prison - from dietary needs to communication with the outside world. Through a balance of legal defense support and personal experience, Liberty Advisors makes the legal process less daunting.

Answering the Difficult Questions

One of the critical services Tara Lenich provides is answering non-legal questions from clients and their loved ones with her first-hand knowledge of the process. Knowing what to expect can reduce anxiety and make the process less intimidating. Common concerns Tara addresses include:

Arrest

- Explaining how the process works
- Describing the arraignment process
- Discussing how to procure bail if applicable
- Meeting with Pre-Trial Services

Sentencing

- Describing what to expect on the day of sentencing
- Preparing the family for what happens on the day of sentencing
- Accompanying the client and family to Court

Preparing for Prison

- Organizing and settling the client's affairs
- Answering loved ones' questions

Life in Prison

- Understanding written and unwritten rules
- Covering food and special dietary needs
- Explaining medical availability
- Maintaining physical well being
- Describing job opportunities
- Talking about what daily life entails
- Explaining how communication with the outside world works
- Discussing how to schedule and prepare for family visitation
- Talking about RDAP and other programs

Returning to Society

- Covering how halfway houses and probation work
- Making plans for housing and employment

Support for Clients and Their Attorneys

Liberty Advisors is dedicated to providing comprehensive, yet unobtrusive support to both clients and their defense attorneys. This goes beyond just answering questions; it lies in preparing the accused and their loved ones for what to expect during each stage in the criminal justice process and assisting defense attorneys in providing the best possible non-legal support for each client.
